DOGS AS CHURCH-GOERS. They Were Regular Attendants in Old

Colonial Days. The principal disturbers of worship in the colonial meeting-house were clogs, says William Root Bliss, in "Side Glimpses from the Colonial Mesting-House." They seem to have been regu-

At New London (1662) one of the duties of the sexton was "to order youth in the meeting-house and beat out dogs." At Charlestown (1858) a man was hired at four pounds a year "to ring the bell to meeings and to keep out dogs in meeting time." At Dedham (1874) a man was paid eight For particulars address the president, shillings a year "for keeping dogs out in meeting time and shutting the door."

Andover did not object to dogs, but made them pay for the privilege of coming to meeting. The law of this town (1672) said: "Whatsoever dogs shall be in the meeting-house on the Sabbath day the owner thereof shall pay sixpence for every time."

The dog law of Redding (1662) was peculiar. It runs thus: "Every dog that comes to the meeting, either of Lord's day or lecture day, except it be their dogs that pays for a dogwhipper, the owner of those dogs shall pay sixpence for every time they come to the meeting that doth not pay the dog-whipper."

Twenty-six men wrote their names, or made their marks, in the Redding records, agreeing to "pay the dogwhipper" to whip other people's dogs out of meeting, while their dogs remained and were recognized as members of the congregation in regular standing.

Sometimes he was confined at home to break up the habit, but as soon as he was for the pasture, singling out his love from the herd of cattle and following close at her heels. He would jump up and kiss her in the mouth, lick her feet, and show signs of greatest joy when he came to her. While the cow on her part did not appear to appreciate his attentions, she did not book him away. Finally, the family grew tired of keeping a dog that remained away during the day and only came home for his supper and to spend the night, and gave him to persons living some distance in the counperi Pacific Flyer and reach St. Louis try. Utilizing Popular Airs

The Boston Post tells a story of a young man who is forbidden to call on or write to the girl with whom he is deeply in love, and by whom he is loved. He manages to circumvent the vigilance of her parents by whistling popular airs, she answering on the piano. He walks by the house, for instance, piping 'Alice, Where Art Thou?" In good time he hears "Home, Sweet Home" played within. After a turn around the block he starts on "Oh, Nannie, Wilt Thou Gang wi' Me?" Pernaps the return will be "Where Are You Going To?" A few bars of "Come Into the Garden, Maud," convey to her the tip and the opening of "All's Well" on the piano tells him everything is understood.

The following is told of an old lady who had her hair cut off in a severe illness, and wore a wig in its place. She was staying in a continental hotel, and one day noticed a gentleman looking curiously at her hair. Soon after, on some excuse, he crossed the room to behind where she sat. She calmly got up, turned around, and, lifting her hair from her head, said: "Yes, sir; it is a wig."

WOOD MOST USED.

Pine Is Pashloned Into the Greatest Variety of Products. Oak can be put to the greatest variety of uses, but as a matter of fact pine wood is most used. A phenomenal demand for the latter in the wood-pulp industry has arisen within recent years. Over 1,000,000 tons of wood pulp were produced in the United States alone in 1894; and 240,000 tons in Norway and Sweden, the bulk of it from pine. Pine is also largely used in ship and house carpentry, and it is adaptable so many purposes, and is so abundant, that it has come into almost universal requisition. Common turpentine is extracted from it, as are also tar, pitch, resin and lampblack. Splinters of the landers instead of candles suspermen make ropes of the lines bark, and the Kamtchatkans and Laplanders steep the latter in water to make a coarse kind of bread. The oil obtained from the shoots of the dwarf pine is used medicinally by the neasanta of Hungary, while the soft-grained silver fir is used for the sounding boards of musical instruments, and the Germans employ it almost exclusively in their vast toy factories. The wood used in the manufacture of lucifer matches is mostly pine, and the aggregate amount of pine wood used in these various industries exceeds that of all other kinds of wood put together.

STATISTICS MAY ERR. Figures Never Lie, But Their Basis May

of statistics may sometimes be very faulty. Commenting on this limitation of the statistician's science, Carroll D. Wright points out that, in the matter of crime, the number of sentences in a given state may vary with the legislation. Lows are constantly being passed, Mr. Wright says, to raise moral delinquencies to the grade of positive crimes, and then, after a time, such laws may conclusions obtained by comparing and will seen have to be covered by an-one year with another. This is illustrated by the record of liquor legislation in connection with crimes. Prohibitory legislation seems uniformly to increase drunkenness, for the reason, in large part, that it increases, if enforced, the number of convictions. A new class of statistics is called into existence. It is to be noted also that, as a rule, the authorities of large cities are opposed to prohibitary laws, deeming licenses more rational or expedient. They are accordingly often led to enforce prohibitory laws with extreme rigor in order to make them odious and secure their repeal. With a license law drunken persons. Thus it comes about that statistics seem to prove prohibition extremely prolific in crime, while licenses promote virtue. In any case, errors enter the record by reason of want of uniformity in methods in vari- in dice and fried,-Boston Herald. ous perts of a given state. This want of uniformity at a particular date is excoeded by the variations between different dates. In recent years statistics are better kept than formerly, with the effect of appearing to show an increase of crime. But appearances are deceptive in this case, Mr. Wright thinks. In 1880 the number of convicts in penitentiaries thad a half dollar that I didn't want."—

Near Little Caps. The nurse's caps are round, not unlike the sweeper's in shape. They make up for their simplicity of form by their claborate material. The waitress' cap may be either square or triangular. In either case a point lies directly above the middle of the forehead of the wearer.

The sweeping cap is made of gingham, and it is not beautiful. It is circular in shape and entirely covers the head of the sweeper. It is purely utili-tarian. It is made of material heavy enough to prevent the dust from filtering through.

Caps for domestic wear are of four sorts. There is the nurse's ordinary cap and there is the nurse's stringed cap, which has a foreign air calculated to deceive the uninitiated into believing the wearer is an importation from abroad. Then there is the waitress' cap and there is the mob or sweeping cap. Altogether the array is an imposing one. Chicago Record.
